

What Bratislava is

→ Almost a half million population, capital of the Slovak Republic since 1993, part of the European Union since 2004 and whose official currency is the euro;

→ Only capital in the world located on the border of three countries - Slovakia, Austria and Hungary, and the closest to another capital - Vienna;

→ Once part of the lands settled by the ancient Celts (Boii), famous for building military camps to guard their territory and for Biatices, the coins they minted. Remains of Limes Romanus, in a unique border defence called Gerulata, can be found in the Rusovce neighbourhood south of Bratislava.

→ Historically called Pressburg, Pozsony, Prešporok, it was the capital of the Kingdom of Hungary from 1536 to 1783;

→ Known for the "BRATISLAVA PROMENADE", streets lined with numerous original cafés and with a special atmosphere;

→ Coronation town of the Hungarian kings of the House of Habsburg between the years 1563 - 1830, where 11 kings and 7 royal spouses were crowned in the

St. Martin's Cathedral, among them also Maria Theresa in 1741;

→ Its compact historical centre still has many architectural signs of its royal past - beautiful mansions and family villas of world-famous artists, architects and inventors such as Johann Nepomuk Hummel, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Franz Liszt, Ludwig von Beethoven, Bela Bartók, Joseph Haydn, Rudolf von Laban, Franz Xaver Messerschmidt, Arthur Fleischmann, Wolfgang von Kempelen and Johann Andreas Segner;

→ Remarkable legacies from the Communist era in Petržalka, Central Europe's largest neighbourhood of housing estates. Historically called Engerau;

→ Surrounded by vineyards producing quality wine that can be tasted at stylish wine bars scattered across the city centre and at typical cellars in Rača, Devin and Vajnory neighbourhoods, all which offer a fantastic culinary experience;

→ An environmentally-friendly city on the Danube with unspoilt natural treasures and protected natural habitats of European significance.
