

The White Night in Bratislava

The largest and most visited contemporary art festival in Slovakia will fill the Bratislava streets from the 1st until the 15th of October. The White Night is a prestigious international art project aiming to present to the public the contemporary art forms and unconventional, unrecognized, and important places from European cities.

Sep 28, 2017

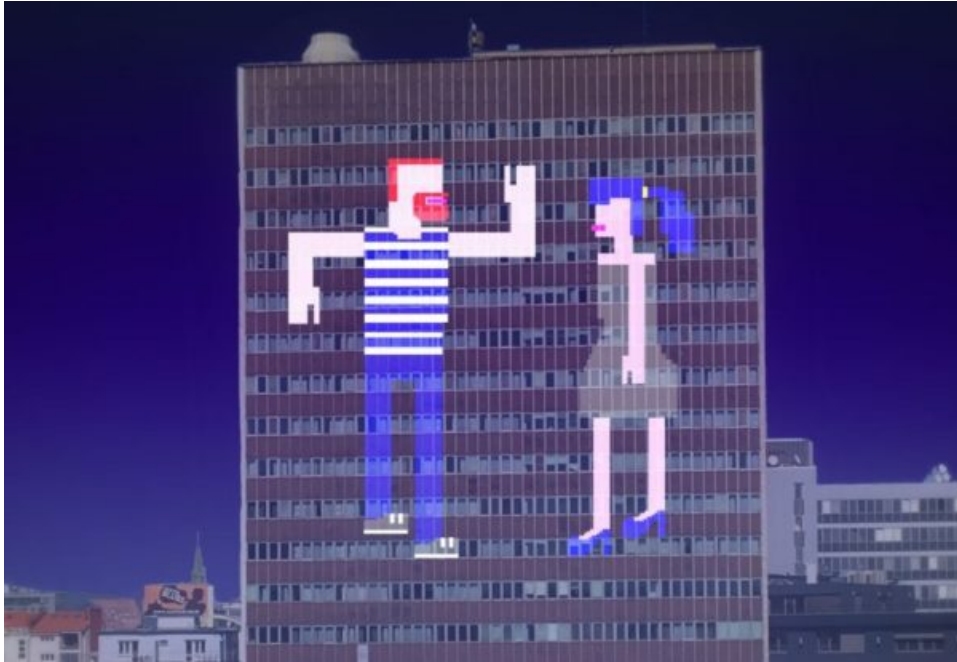

Photo credit: Bratislava Convention Bureau

First White Night, named Nuit Blanche, was in 2002 hosted in Paris and by the year 2013 more than two and a half million people have visited it. In within the few years, the project has spread from Paris to various cities around the globe – New York, Los Angeles, Miami, Toronto, Rome, Gaza, Jerusalem, Madrid, Riga, Amsterdam, and others. Zuzana Pacáková first organised the White Night festival in her hometown of Košice and after five successful productions, she decided to bring this amazing festival also to Bratislava.

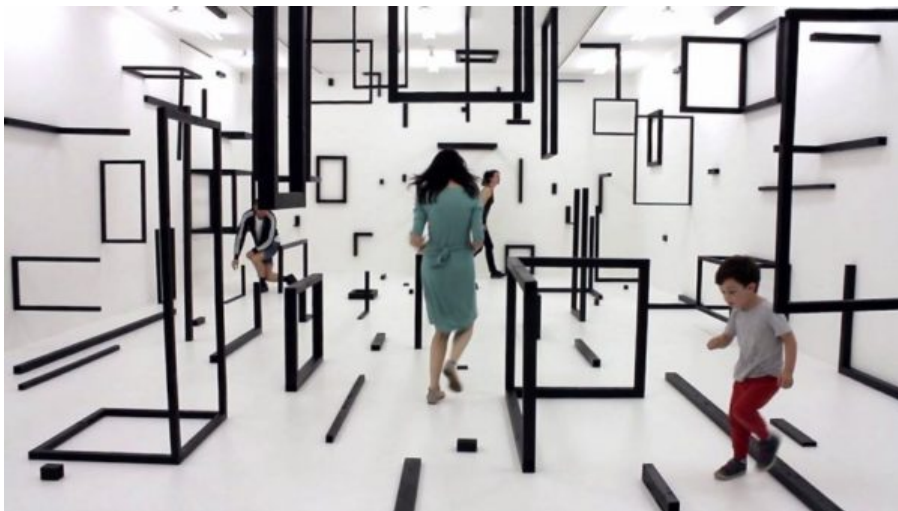

Photo credit: Bratislava Convention Bureau

If you might be wondering why all that fuss about the White Night, let us explain you. The White Night offers visitors an untraditional artistic city walk through the night filled with fascinating experiences and new sensations. On the second night of October, the night becomes the day and people and art fill streets. If you are visiting Bratislava in this period, make sure to get a special map that will guide you through various art spots – from visually attractive installations, concerts, films, theatre pieces, and dance and live performances.

The organisers' ambition is to point out how untraditional spots and city streets can be transformed by art during one night out. And while being in Bratislava, make sure to see the Bratislava Castle, Ondrej's cemetery, Medical Garden, Main Square, UFO and Pyramid in a different light, from a brand new perspective.

Photo credit: Bratislava Convention Bureau