Chill out in an amazing coronation city

WELCOME TO BRATISLAVA

Bratislava is the only capital in the world located on the border of three sovereign states – Slovakia, Austria and Hungary. Besides its strategic location on the River Danube, the city takes pride in its rich history. The first Celtic oppidum was founded here in the 2nd century BC. The location at the intersection of two important historical trade routes, the Danube and Amber Roads, highly influenced the development of trade and handicraft. It experienced rapid growth under the reign of Maria Theresia crowned the Hungarian queen in 1741 and the Bratislava Castle became a representative royal seat. Not only the Castle, but also the newly built aristocratic Baroque and Rococo palaces enjoyed bustling political, social and cultural life enriched by visits of musical geniuses, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Ludwig van Beethoven, Joseph Haydn or Franz Liszt. After the fall of the Iron Curtain in 1989, Bratislava started to profile as a modern European metropolis and an attractive tourist destination.

CORONATION CITY

The past ...

Short after the Battle of Mohács (1526), ancient Prešporok (present-day Bratislava) became an administrative and later, between 1563 and 1830, also a coronation city of the Kingdom of Hungary and the seat of the king and the archbishop. Ten kings, one queen and eight royal wives from the Habsburg Dynasty were crowned in the St. Martin's Cathedral. Maria Theresa was the only ruling monarch crowned with all honours and ceremonies, namely on 25 June 1741. Under her reign the city enjoyed a construction boom and rich cultural life. She ordered to build a baroque palace Theresianum into the existing castle palace for her son-in-law Duke Albert of Saxe-

Teschen, governor of Hungary, who was a big art lover. The works collected on the Bratislava Castle served as the basis for the collection of the Albertina Museum in Vienna.

... and the present

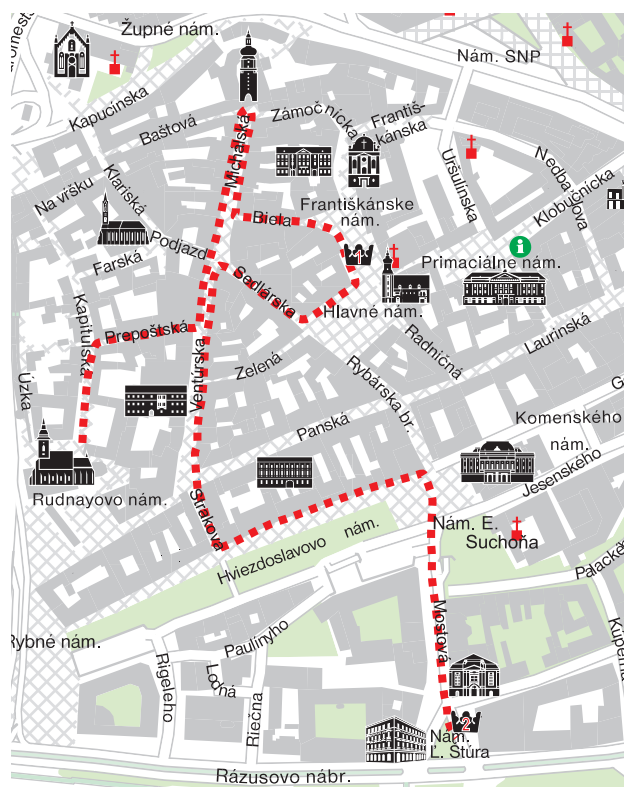

The tradition of coronations is brought back to life every year during the fourth weekend of June. A festive procession through the streets of the city in period costumes is a unique experience for the young and old alike. The Coronation Festival also includes a celebration of Maria Theresa's favourite wine – the Festival of Fränkisch. During the coronation all fountains were filled with wine and this custom continues to this day.

Follow the route of the coronation procession of Hungarian rulers commemorated with 178 crown-shaped brass plaques set into the pavement.

CITY OF MUSIC

Bratislava is rightly considered the city of music. In the past, musical geni such as Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Joseph Haydn, Ludwig van Beethoven, Anton Grigorievič Rubinstein, Franz Liszt or a Bratislava native son and brilliant pianist Johann Nepomuk Hummel used to demonstrate their musical talent here. Antonio Salieri and Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy also honoured Bratislava with their visits. While wandering around the Old Town, do not forget to notice several commemorative plaques placed on the walls of palaces connecting the city with all those representatives of classical music. The current opera ensemble gained the Slovak National Theatre a world-renowned reputation due to a wide range of quality classical performances featuring opera stars such as Peter Dvorský, Lucia Popp, Edita Grúberová, Adriana Kučerová and others. The Slovak Philharmonic situated in the Reduta building has been the centre of musical life in Bratislava for more than six decades.

To the most prestigious classical music events held in Bratislava throughout the year belong Bratislava Music Festival, Convergence Chamber Music Festival and Viva Musica! Festival. The latest project for classical music lovers called Bratislava goes Classical brings a new cycle of regular chamber concerts at Bratislava Castle.

CITY OF MUSEUMS AND GALLERIES

Museums

Bratislava is home to 30 specialized museums. In the City History Museum situated in the Old Town Hall you can find out more about the city history and the daily life of its inhabitants from prehistoric times until the end of the 1930s, while the Museum of History in Bratislava Castle documents history and the ethno-cultural development of the Slovaks, as well as a rich numismatic collection from ancient times to the present.

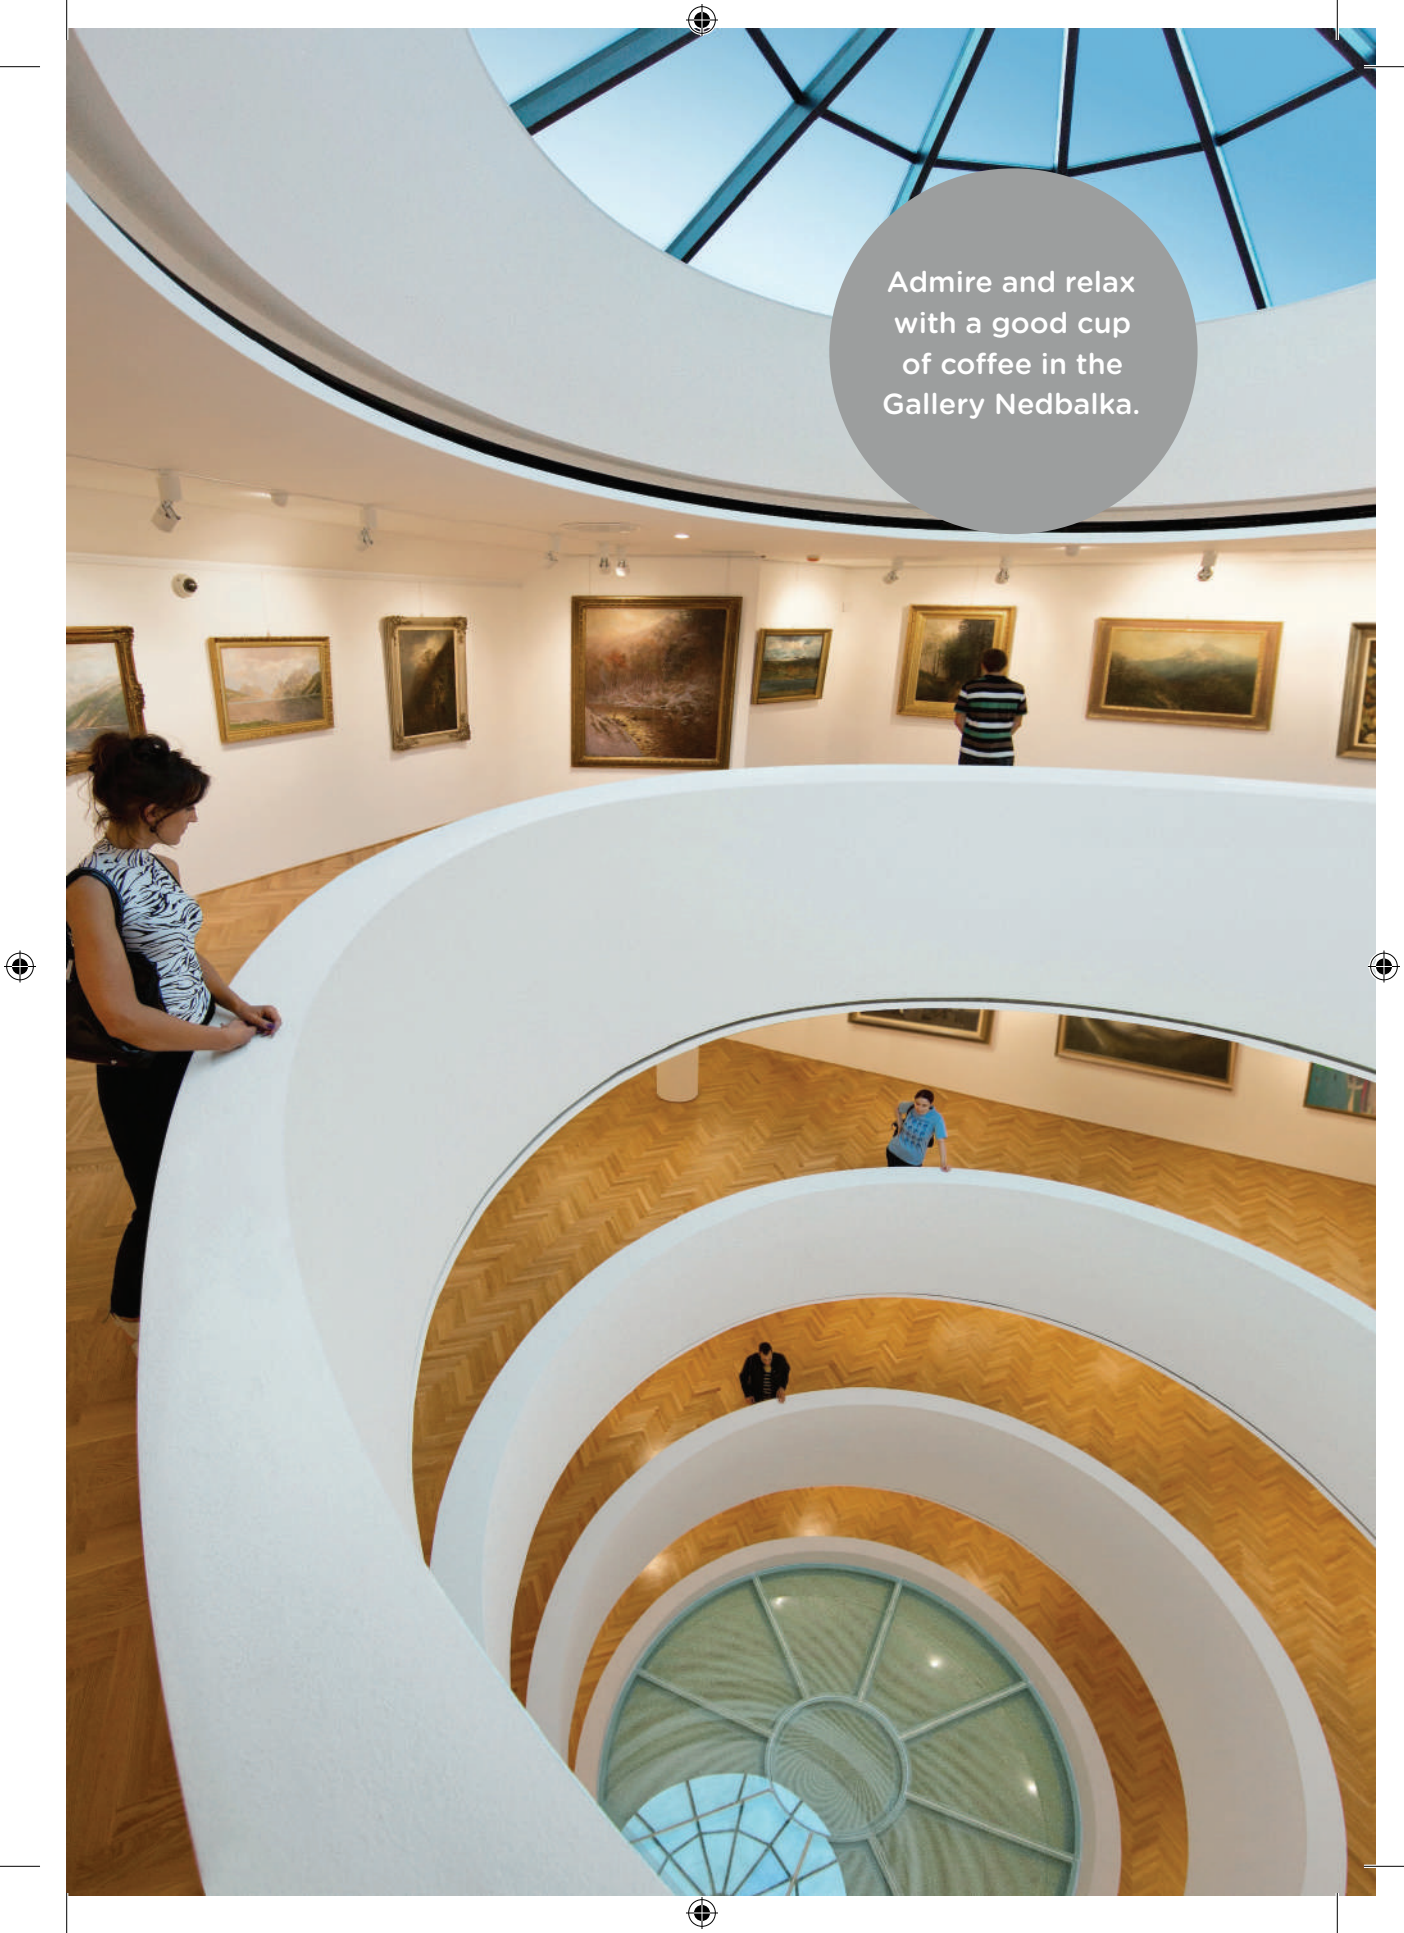

Galleries

Bratislava is the perfect destination for visual art lovers. Rich collections ranging from medieval to contemporary art are on display in the Bratislava City Gallery and the Slovak National Gallery in their permanent expositions and temporary exhibitions. There you can also discover several plaster and bronze casts of the Character heads made by the sculptor Franz Xaver Messerschmidt during his stay in Bratislava. The only preserved original, the bust of the Capuchin, is exhibited in the Bratislava City Gallery in the Mirbach Palace.

Best examples of Slovak modern art can be seen in the Nedbalka Gallery with the interior layout similar to the Guggenheim Museum in New York. Less than 20 kilometres away from the city centre is the Danubiana Meulensteen Art Museum, one of the youngest European museums of modern art, offering a unique symbiosis of works of art, modern architecture and surrounding nature.

Bratislava has a number of significant public green areas to explore. Sad Janka Kráľa, the oldest public park in Central Europe, is only a short walk from the city centre and during the summer months there is a popular artificial beach with many attractions open in its immediate vicinity. The public transportation system will conveniently take you to the nearby parks Horský Park and Bratislavský lesopark (Bratislava Forest Park). In the latter there are various sporting facilities and possibilities for fishing and rowing waiting for you, or let a cable car take you up the Kamzík

It is home to 163 animal species and a unique exposition of Mesozoic reptiles, DinoPark, can be also found on its premises. Creative children can improve their skills in the International House of Art for Children - Bibiana or in the Children's Museum, while older children will be captivated by an exposition of the Museum of Transport. An indoor centre FUNCITY in the Cubicon Gallery with many slides, climbing frames and other surprises is a good choice to amuse children especially when the weather is not so favourable. Similar facilities can also be found in the shopping centres.

A rich collection of vehicles ranging from bicycles to locomotives can be admired in the Museum of Transport.

Bratislava is justifiably proud of its unique gastronomy heavily influenced by Slovak, Austrian and Hungarian cuisines. Restaurants and wine pubs serving traditional Slovak dishes such as bryndzové halušky (potato dumplings with sheep cheese), lokše (potato dough pancakes), roasted goose or duck, are an integral part of the city. Good food and good beer belong together and exquisite local beer made according to the traditional Pressburg recipes is offered in several brewery restaurants. Bratislava rolls made from butter pastry with nut or poppy filling are definitely the most famous local dessert. A pleasant smell of a wide range of local delicacies is a magnet for all visitors of the annual Christmas markets. Bratislava's culinary palette cannot be complete without trendy restaurants with international cuisine that recently popped up in the historic city centre as well as in the Eurovea shopping centre set by the River Danube.

CITY OF QUALITY WINE

The history of winegrowing on the territory of present-day Bratislava dates back to the 3rd century AD and is attributed to the Roman emperor Marcus Aurelius. In the mid-19th century two important wine companies were based in Bratislava - Hubert and Palugyay. Still and sparkling wines of the Chateau Palugyay wine brand were enjoyed by members of social elites all over the world, and so deservedly called royal. They were even served on board the Titanic. Maria Theresa's favourite wine Račianska frankovka could never be absent from the emperor's table. The nearby Little Carpathians winegrowing region has an excellent climate conditions for the production of white wines such as Rhine Riesling, Grüner Veltiner, Chardonnay or new local grape varieties Devín and Pálava. Red wine grape varieties grown here are Blaufränkisch, Cabernet Sauvignon, Alibernet, Dunaj and Blauer Portugieser. International prizes won in world's prestigious contests such as Concours Mondial de Bruxelles and Vinalies Internationales in Paris guarantee the high quality of wines produced in the Little Carpathians winegrowing region. The Bratislava neighbourhood Devín is famous for the production of traditional currant wine made from black and red currants which can be tasted in every local wine pub.

A journey back in time through the socialist-era monuments

Distinctive socialist architecture has significantly changed the face of the city and influenced everyday life of its inhabitants. Large-scale housing estates are perhaps the best examples of Socialist realism although they used to be downgraded and unflatteringly called "dormitories." The largest housing estate is Petržalka situated on the right bank of the River Danube with more than 100,000 inhabitants. Since 1989 the housing estates have been transformed to modern, comfortable and functional places to live, work, shop and relax.

See the most important sights of socialist architecture during a ride in a legendary Czechoslovak car Škoda 110 or a retro bus Karosa Škoda.

Bunkers in Petržalka

Still rather unknown historic attraction is located in Petržalka neighbourhood just a stone's throw from the former Iron Curtain. Several military bunkers from the original fortification system built in 1938 now house the Museum of Petržalka Fortification. The Museum with preserved original equipment documents history and the defence system of pre-war Czechoslovakia as well as the daily life of soldiers of the border guard.

After the sun goes down, Bratislava truly comes alive. You can start soaking up its evening atmosphere in one of many cosy little cafes set in the historic city centre. During the summer months let yourself be lured by restaurants found on every corner and make yourself comfortable on their terraces to enjoy the culinary delicacies or a glass of quality wine from the Little Carpathians vineyards. A not-to-be-missed experience for true romantics is an unforgettable evening walk by the River Danube with charming views of the illuminated city dominants. The most breath-taking night views of Bratislava offer the UFO observation deck atop the SNP Bridge and the revolving restaurant Altitude situated in a television tower.
